

Saturnalia / Saturnario

Written by Rey Andújar, Saturnalia / Saturnario challenges the monotony of our surroundings and the result is a provocative, funny, disturbing, sad, and triumphant world.

This hardcover collection of fourteen short stories has been translated into English by Kolin Jordan. Saturnalia takes us to the excitement and heartache related to expatriation and immigration, revenge and desire, and music and belonging. Through it all we get the sense of a world striated by the unexpected.

Rey Andújar is a Dominican writer and performer. His books have won various awards including The International Award from Casa de Teatro, for his book of short stories, El factor carne (IslaNegra, 2005); Puerto Rican Pen Club Award for his novel, Candela (Alfaguara, 2007); The Story Award from the International Book Fair in Santo Domingo for Amoricidio (AgentesCatalíticos, 2007); The Ultramar Letters Award (New York, 2011) for Saturnalia, and most recently Andújar won the Cuento y Poesía Consenso Award at Northeastern University.
